Faculty and Staff News

Pam Fine, Knight Chair in News, Leadership and Community, has been elected president of the American Society of News Editors. Fine attended the ASNE-APME 2015 convention this weekend at Stanford University.

Kerry Benson, strategic communication track chair, has been nominated by the KU Senior Class of 2016 as a finalist for the Honor for Outstanding Progressive Educator, or H.O.P.E., Award. This is the 10th time Benson has been a finalist for the award.

Doctoral student Goran Ghafour's dissertation proposal has been approved by KU's Doctoral Student Research Fund Program to fund the dissertation's research materials.

The New York Times is sponsoring a fellowship named for David Carr, the media columnist for The New York Times who died in February. The first David Carr Fellow will spend two years in The Times newsroom covering the intersection of technology, media and culture. The focus of the fellow’s work could be steady, sustained news stories, magazine-style features, investigative efforts, videography, or a mix of approaches, depending on the interests of the fellow and the recommendation of Times editors. The fellowship is an opportunity for a journalist early in his or her career to build upon Carr’s commitment to holding power accountable and telling engaging, deeply reported stories. Journalists with experience of all types are welcome, especially those from digital and new media. The deadline to apply is Nov. 14, and the fellowship will begin in early 2016. Details are available here.

Staff members who have not attended Trello training yet are encouraged to sign up for one of the remaining sessions below or set up a time to train with Heather Lawrenz.

- 2:30-3:30 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 20, Room 105
- 8-9 a.m., Thursday, Oct. 22, Room 105

Internships

The Kansas City Star is accepting applications for its summer reporting internships. Interns are compensated $420 a week for 10 weeks. To apply, email a cover letter, a resume listing three references and no more than five clips to Craig Nienaber, deputy metro editor, at cnienaber@kcstar.com. The deadline to apply is Nov. 1.

The Kansas City Star sports department is seeking an intern for summer 2016 to cover community sports and help out with video and reporting from Royals games and Chiefs training camp. Students would work for 10 weeks for class credit. To apply, send a brief cover letter, resume and writing samples no later than Nov. 30 to sports editor Jeff Rosen at jrosen@kcstar.com or 1729 Grand Blvd., Kansas City, Missouri, 64108.

HERO Sports is seeking talented and versatile writers, photographers and producers to cover college sports across the country. HERO Sports campus correspondents serve as a voice for their university’s athletic programs. Their work could be featured on the website, YouTube channel and other social platforms. Learn more here.

The Seattle Times is seeking juniors, seniors or graduate students to apply for a summer internship. Applicants must be journalism majors or have a demonstrated commitment to print or online journalism, possess social media skills and be digitally astute. Internship experience at other news organizations is required. Apply by Nov. 1. Read the details here.

The Louisville Courier-Journal is hiring interns for summer reporting, photography and multimedia positions. Interns will work 40 hours a week for 12 weeks and will make $500 a week. Students must have completed one year of college. Deadline to apply is Nov. 6. Learn more and how to apply here.

Slate is hiring several internship positions for summer, fall and spring. Learn more here.

The Association for Women in Sports Media has seven internships/scholarships available for next summer: four newspaper/magazine/online, one broadcast, one broadcast production, and one public relations. Recipients receive a $1,000 scholarship and complimentary registration and lodging at AWSM’s convention in Miami. Deadline to apply is Oct. 31. Learn more and apply here.

The Congressional Award offers an internship program for college students each spring, summer and fall. Interns assist Congressional Award program managers with promoting, publicizing and overseeing the foundation and its day-to-day operations. Learn more here.

Find internship opportunities at many large news organizations at Poynter.org or check out the J-School’s jobs and internships web page. You can filter by job or internship and full or part time. And don’t forget that our career and outreach coordinator, Steve Rottinghaus, can help you with your search.

Other student opportunities
Students are encouraged to enter the Hearst Journalism Awards Program for outstanding work in writing, broadcast, photojournalism and multimedia categories. Scholarship prizes range from $1,000 to $5,000. Deadlines vary for each category. Learn more at the Hearst Awards website and then contact Susanne Shaw, Doug Ward or Lisa McLendon so they can help you submit your work.

Spark KC: Advertising’s Career Conference 2015 is 8 a.m.-3 p.m. on Nov. 9 at the College Basketball Experience inside the Sprint Center with a post-conference networking event 3-5 p.m. across the street at Pizza Bar. The event provides students with valuable information to help them succeed, such as resume/portfolio reviews, keynote presentations and panel sessions. Students can register online for $30, which increases to $35 at the door.

The Carnegie-Knight News21 program invites journalism students to apply for this prestigious opportunity. The program begins with a virtual seminar during the spring 2016 semester taught by Leonard Downie Jr., former editor of The Washington Post. Students will conduct research and learn from experts on civil rights in America. The seminar is followed by an immersive reporting experience in the summer, led by News21 Executive Editor Jacqueline Petchel, a Pulitzer Prize-winning investigative journalist. Students work out of a newsroom at the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication in downtown Phoenix and travel the country to report and produce their in-depth, multimedia stories. Learn more here.

The BEA Festival of Media Arts is accepting entries for its international exhibition of student work in the following competitions: audio, documentary, interactive multimedia, two-year/small colleges, news, scriptwriting, sports and video. Winners will receive recognition and exhibition of their work during BEA’s annual convention in Las Vegas, April 17-20, 2016. Deadline is Dec. 15. Learn more here.

The University of Kansas TRIO McNair Scholars Program is seeking applicants for 2015-2016. The application is open until Nov. 27. The McNair Scholars Program helps low-income, first-generation college-going and underrepresented minority undergraduates prepare for doctoral study. Students who participate in this program are provided with paid research opportunities, faculty mentors, a GRE preparation course and tutoring. News and information or strategic communication majors looking to take their research to the next level are encouraged to apply. Learn more here.

Advertising Women of New York invites J-School students to sign up for its annual Advertising Career Conference (ACC). Meet executives in the advertising, communications and advertising technology industries and to learn about possible career options in this field. The two-day event starts Nov. 19 with a networking and career fair. The next day features workshops, networking and a visit to one of the many companies that are part of the AWNY community. Learn more here.

Students (including those graduating in December or May) who are members of the National Association of Black Journalists or the National Association of Hispanic Journalists are encouraged to apply to The New York Times Student Journalism Institute, which is May 21-June 5, 2016, at the CUNY Graduate School of Journalism in Manhattan. All costs to attend the institute are paid by The New York Times Company. The deadline to apply is Nov. 1. Learn more here.
